

Gentlemen:

Consolidating the communications industry will plainly be the first step to a totalitarian society , which always ends badly for both the oppressed, and the oppressors. Controlling the public's media intake will of course be misused, as it is being misused as we speak.

Everyone, with the exception of the stupid, knows these facts. Including you. I contend any victory over people arrived at by the spirit of this rule change will be pyrrhic ending in disaster, destruction, and conflagration. Creating and feeding open minds is an ethical, good karma pursuit. Controlling people through misleading them with false information will create a confused, angry, restive society where people don't feel personally empowered. Bad news services misleading the public have currently added to our people feeling more confused, uneasy, and a general sense of great wrongness.

The truth will set you free.---and what will lies do?

Break up Orwellian communication conglomerates.
